

DISCUSS CAMP WORK . . . Four South High School students pause here for a brief discussion of the five days they spent at the Junior Red Cross Leadership Training at Camp Seeley in the San Bernardino mountains. The four, Larry Krogstad, Bill Willett, Julie Rogers, and Jim Cross, returned home last week from the leadership training program. The students were seced by their school.

REFRESHING DRINK . . . North High School delegates to the Junior Red Cross leadership training camp at Camp Seeley in the San Bernardino mountains pause for a few moments at a drinking fountain to talk over the week's events. The four, Jim Breitenfeldt, Irvin McClendon, Norma Wilkie, and Nellieann Bazilius were chosen by the school because of their interest and potential in school leadership. The returned to Torrance last week.

Marine Corps Offers Incentive

Men without prior service may enlist now in the Marine Corps and not leave for active duty for 120 days, according to Sgt. Ernie Hayes of the Marine Corps recruiting office at 2165 Torrance Blvd.

Sgt. Hayes said the plan enables those of draft age to remain at home for about four months to straighten out their personal affairs. The Corps offers three- and four-year enlistments, he added. Further information on enlistment qualifications may be obtained by telephoning FA 8-2330.

Two Torrance Women Named Prize Winners

The birthday's over, but Magic Chef's recent winners, Mrs. Eva Gulick of 2468 W. 237th St. and Mrs. J. A. McVicar of 2120 Gramercy Ave., both in Torrance, continue the celebration.

Mrs. Gulick won Magic Chef's Pink Cloud tour to Hawaii, which will include breakfast at Woody's International Market Place in Waikiki and a 110-mile tour around the island of Oahu. She and her husband will be flown by deluxe air transportation and will stop at a luxurious hotel on Waikiki Beach.

Mrs. McVicar, winner of the O'Keefe and Merritt deluxe gas range, which does everything but plan her meals, is so thrilled, because, as she explained, she always wanted to barbecue some of those Magic Chef's tempting meats.

Teachers Attend College Session

Mrs. Dorothea Hobgkinson and Mrs. Marilyn Hickson of Torrance were among the 106 teachers and administrators from five states attending the Advanced Instructional Methods in Reading workshop at Arizona State College, Flagstaff.

Luke Munn, director of the workshop and curriculum director of the Norman, Okla., public schools, said he was particularly pleased at the large number of enrollees of teachers from the upper grades and junior and senior high school.

The workshop provided each participant a basic background in a phonetic approach to the teaching of reading that may be used on all grade levels. As the workshop progressed, Munn explained how the approach fits into a total reading program aimed at improving reading standards in the public schools.

More than 60 per cent of the participants were from Arizona, with the heaviest concentration from the Flagstaff and Phoenix areas. California, Oregon, Utah and Nevada were the other states represented at the workshop.

WINS TRIP . . . Mrs. Eva Gulick of Torrance, smiles happily as she looks over travel plans with Magic Chef's manager, Vince Michael. Mrs. Gulick is winner of Magic Chef's Happy Birthday celebrations, and will spend two magic weeks in Hawaii.

Big Contract New Market Given Ryan Opening Set

A new follow-on order exceeding $9 million for production of giant aft fuselage sections for Boeing KC-135 jet tankers and C-135 transport airplanes has been received by Ryan Aeronautical Co. The new contract assures production well into 1963.

The new order is the eighth contract awarded Ryan by Boeing Airplane Co. since work on the KC-135 project began in 1955. The 500th fuselage section in this series of orders was completed and rolled off the assembly line at Ryan's San Diego plant on Thursdays, July 20.

The 40-foot long, 3-ton units are the largest ever subcontracted on a volume production basis in the aircraft industry. They are shipped to Renton, Washington, in specially designed holding fixtures on railroad flat cars.

The high-flying, high-speed

Market Basket stores will open a new store Wednesday at 129 Lomita Blvd., Wilmington.

The new establishment will be located in the Wilmington Plaza Shopping Center at Lomita Blvd. and Main St. It will have 35,000 square feet in floor space and provide parking for more than 300 cars.

John Seigman, promoted from the Tustin Market Basket, has been named manager of the new Wilmington store.

The chain now totals 53 stores with another new market opening Wednesday in Stanton. Another one is under construction in Burbank and scheduled for opening in December.

KC-135 is the Air Force's chief "aerial gasoline station," utilized for mid-air refueling of Jet bombers and fighters to extend their non-stop range for combat and patrol missions.
